SGA Returns to In-Class Learning!

This September, Saint George Academy (SGA) students and faculty finally returned to in-class learning. Just like a long-awaited reunion, everyone was thrilled to be back in the classroom, to see familiar faces and to return to a somewhat normal routine.

But returning to the classroom posed its own challenges, and made it clear to many that even the normal routine might take some getting used to.

Senior, Jadess Speller was asked how he felt about being back in the school building.

He stated, "I would say it was weird for me at first. I hadn't been in a school building since last year and I almost got confused on remembering where all the classes were. Now, it feels like my old routine and I didn't mind my old routine, so I would say yes, I enjoy it." He added, "I don't have to worry about using up my printer's ink to print out worksheets..."

Giara Arevalo, a Junior, commented on her favorite part of being back in the classroom

"The best part of being back in school after quarantine is learning in person. I feel like I really am absorbing the information while sitting in a classroom, the environment is much different compared to online. Hearing the instructor speak to you face to face makes it much easier to grasp the information being told rather than looking at a computer screen for hours."

For Diana Barillova, also a Junior, coming back to school was a welcome change.

"The best part of being back is definitely being able to have some more freedom. I can hang out after school and be a part of different clubs like the Drama Club."
